

Useful Websites and Learning Styles

British Association for Dental Nurses On this website, you will find job vacancies, members' area, conferences and events calendar and much more...	http://www.badn.org.uk
National Examining Board for Dental Nurses You will find information regarding post-registration courses in your area, e.g. OHE, Radiography and others.	http://www.nebdn.org.uk
General Dental Council – those who regulate the dental professionals in the UK. Useful place to start if you have problems at work and don't quite know where to start!	http://www.gdc-uk.org
UNISON – if you have employment issues, this is a good place to start.	http://www.unison.org.uk

There is a value in knowing how you learn best. Have you wondered why you have attended a study day and you have been unable to take any of it in? Perhaps you went to another one and you really enjoyed it? Once you have found out what your learning style is, you will be able to make better judgements on which CPD activities in the future you would like to attend. Some prefer lectures whilst others prefer hands on and workshop style.

A website which help you to explore this:-

<http://www.bbc.co.uk/keyskills>