

Thoughts I'd Like to Share

The guiding principles in my life are There is karma. Treat people the way you would like to be treated. Some things you just have to let go of. Pick your fights.

In dealing with others, I've learned there are different kinds of people. Some are nice & helpfull. Some will ~~screw~~ screw you over and not think twice about it. Some people just float and don't care either way. Play dumb and be nice gets you what you want faster than being an asshole.

When I'm feeling down, I like to think about All my kids growing up and having a life with a family of their own.